PROJECT DESCRIPTION

The homeowner's objective was to have a thoughtful and functional design for their outdated kitchen. The new design encompassed the removal of a wall allowing for a more cohesive kitchen

The new kitchen featured traditional details and fine craftsmanship, while keeping with the integrity of the home. White painted inset cabinetry in a traditional design with polished nickel hardware complimented the addition of white crackled subway tile and Volga Blue granite countertops. A built in bench was added to the eating area allowing for additional seating. A functional dark cherry armoire was added for pantry storage, as well as a message center. The wood floors were refinished and the walls were painted a hint of blue.

Additional color was added to the kitchen by adding custom window treatments made of Suzani fabric, handmade Ikat pillows, and a custom wood table with an iron-forged base. Details abound to add interest to this newly renovated home.
